Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 15 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning milder with a fresh breeze.

Today:
A murky morning with fog patches, lingering on particularly in the north of the region where the odd isolated shower is possible. Brighter spells in the south. Feeling mild, despite the fresh southwesterly wind. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Some clear spells during the evening, but isolated light showers remain possible for the north. Winds strengthen as rain sweeps across the region during the small hours, clearing by dawn. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Tuesday:
There'll be sunny spells on Tuesday. However, scattered blustery showers are likely to develop, turning heavy during the afternoon, especially in the south. Clearer during the evening. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Unsettled and mild throughout. Blustery showers with sunny spells on Wednesday, widespread rain later. Showers and strong winds with possible coastal gales on Thursday. Further rain on Friday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.